

3 EASY & TIME SAVING CAMPING TIPS.

1. Make a DIY Fire Starter

Being able to make a fire is an essential part of any serious camping trip, but having to cart along everything with you or go out into the forest hunting for kindling to burn is often not very convenient. Instead, try making a quick and convenient fire starter by placing charcoal into an empty egg carton. When you're ready to start cooking, simply light it up for an easy-start fire.

2. Keep Eggs in a Water Bottle

Carrying eggs around on a camping trip is an obvious recipe for disaster (unless you have an egg holder), but you don't have to wait until you're back home to cook an omelet outdoors. Instead, crack a dozen eggs and whisk them up, just as you would if you were preparing an omelet or scrambled eggs. Get an empty water bottle and fill it with the pre-whisked eggs, pack a skillet, and you have everything you need for the perfect campsite breakfast. Keep your liquid eggs on ice, use them within a day or freeze them to buy a little more time

3. Make Lamps out of Jugs

Carrying a big lantern can be cumbersome, but you need a little mood lighting to brighten your tent before nodding off to sleep. Try filling up a jug of water (which you need anyway) and strapping a headlamp around it with the light facing the jug. You'll have an instant homespun lantern for your tent. It won't be a very strong beam, but it will give the tent a pleasant ambient glow.
